

PRESS RELEASE

Excite your palate at Oxford Castle Food & Wine Festival

- 'A celebration of regional product and culinary talent' returns to Oxford Castle, 17th and 18th September 2011.
- Raymond Blanc OBE and Susy Atkins to officially open the Festival

July 2011 – Two celebrities from the world of food and wine will be opening the third Oxford Castle Food & Wine Festival on Saturday 17th September. World-renowned restaurateur Raymond Blanc OBE, together with wine writer and broadcaster Susy Atkins, will officially welcome visitors to Oxford Castle for the Festival.

Raymond Blanc OBE comments: "In my hometown of Oxford, I am delighted to support the Oxford Castle Food & Wine Festival. Food connects with each part of our life; family, society, health, environment. It is harvest time and we are reaping the rewards of what we have seeded. It is marvellous to see that food is such a celebration."

Raymond Blanc OBE will be signing copies of his new book 'Kitchen Secrets,' from his hit BBC2 TV Series, and later in the day, Adam Johnson, Development Chef at Le Manoir aux Quat'Saisons and co-star of 'Kitchen Secrets' will be cooking up recipes in the Festival demo kitchen.

Susy Atkins will also appear later on Saturday to present a tasting session of great wines for under a tenner. Originally from Oxford, the star of BBC1's 'Saturday

Kitchen' will show how easy it is to enjoy wine on a budget with wines that can all be bought locally.

Throughout the weekend the whole of the Oxford Castle site will be filled with stalls, talks and kitchen demonstrations of all things local, seasonal and tasty, plus a few surprises in the Guest Producers area.

“Bring an appetite for discovery and a palate for temptation,” is the advice that Festival Director, Sarah Mayhew, is giving to visitors planning to attend this year's Oxford Castle Food & Wine Festival.

An important showcase for the region's produce, food and wine purveyors, and culinary talent, more stallholders and participants than ever are expected this year, with some returning, such as Fat Man Chilli, Old Chapel Fudge Co, and Fabulous Vodka plus a host of new arrivals! Among them is Tom Ellis, the Oxford-based 22-year old owner of Champagne supplier First Class Products, who will be bringing a selection of personal favourites, including a 2004 Grand Cru Vintage that the company has just introduced to the UK market. Tom's company also exclusively imports Leroux-Mineau Grand Cru Champagne direct from the vineyard. These Champagnes offer a fine selection that are out of the ordinary but deliver excellent quality and great value.

Oxford's youngest biscuit maker from The Good Biscuit Company will be offering the perfect accompaniment to a hot brew with a mouth-watering selection of home-made biscuits, all using local ingredients.

Fiona Sciolti will be bringing her delicious selection of handmade botanical chocolates. Using English fruit and flowers and always delicious, Sciolti Chocolates have flavours to excite the palate, such as Strawberry and Balsamic Vinegar, Green Tea with Cherry Infusion to Simply Blueberry, “Sciolti Botanical Chocolates are the most delicious chocolates I have ever had the pleasure of tasting, and I can't wait to introduce them to visitors to the festival!” says Sarah Mayhew.

Charitable organisations involved include Oxfam's Grow campaign, where visitors can sign up to help fix faults in the global food system, and global relief charity Shelter will be showing how they help feed, clothe and shelter people in distress situations. Cancer relief centre Maggie's will be bringing a pop-up kitchen, serving up venison burgers and sausages to support its new centre in Oxford.

"The Food & Wine Festival is a real celebration of all the delicious produce this region has to offer," adds Sarah Mayhew. "The 'slow food' movement is gathering momentum across the county, and we're keen to highlight produce that has either been produced in the region or carefully selected from further afield by a new generation of culinary experts. Anyone who is passionate about food, or would simply like to try something new, should come along and explore."

Oxford Castle Food & Wine Festival, Saturday 17th and Sunday 18th September 2011. 10am til 5pm. Entry FREE. There are some places available for stalls – anyone interested should call 01865 201 657 or email sarah.mayhew@topgroup.co.uk.

ENDS

Contacts

Oxford Castle: Karen David on mobile 07989 439291, 01865 512662, karen@spriggsdavid.com or Oxford Castle Events and Marketing Manager, Sarah Mayhew on mobile 07940 287 967, 01865 201 657 or at sm@topgroup.co.uk

Oxford Castle is Oxford's oldest new quarter. Once home to the infamous Oxford Prison and now home to an exciting hub of seven restaurants, including Malmaison, Café 1071, Prezzo, La Tasca, Pizza Express, Krispy Kreme, Real China, Swan and Castle and The Living Room, and the gorgeous Malmaison Boutique Hotel. The Castle also has an exciting visitor attraction 'Oxford Castle Unlocked,' where the secrets of the castle have been unlocked, revealing episodes of Violence, Executions, Great Escapes, Betrayal and even Romance. For art lovers there is the O3 Gallery, with a dynamic programme of exhibitions all year round.